The editor has gone to the Baltimore Convention, and hence the small amount of editorial matter in this issue. On return he will put on the harness for the campaign and will not again be found absent from his post, until the end is known, should life and health last.

Gov. Swan, of Maryland, has engaged rooms for the Alabama delegation to Baltimore Convention, at the magnificent new hotel, the Carrollton.

The question is frequently asked "where is that great Republican strength Mr. Greeley was to bring with him?" After the Baltimore Convention, if he is endorsed there, they will come by battalions. Many Republicans are as yet unwilling to cut loose from Gen. Grant until they are assured that Mr. Greeley will run the race through, which he will certainly do, if endorsed at Baltimore.

The Montgomery Advertiser makes a neat point on Alabama Liberal Republicans, who through disappointment and spite would hazard the chances of their Presidential nominee, in Alabama, when it asks them how they are to account to Mr. Greeley for hostility to a ticket of his friends in this State.

Mosely Bros., of Talladega, have sold the Talladega News and Mountain Home printing establishment to Mr. Edward Bailey.

As an evidence of the manner in which Congress legislates in the interest of wealthy monopolists, we have only to reflect that a tax of five hundred dollars is imposed on dealers in tobacco whose sales do not amount to one thousand dollars a year. People had begun to use largely leaf tobacco in preference to any other kind, and the interests of tobacco manufacturers demanded it should be stopped. Gentlemen who do not raise their own tobacco must henceforth smoke or chew that that has passed through the hands of the manufacturers who sell it.

Hon. Alexander Stephens thinks the Democracy of Georgia are only bound by the action of the Baltimore Convention, in so far as that convention meets his (Stephens) views as to what should be its course. If Greeley is nominated Mr. Stephens inclines to the opinion that the Electoral College of Georgia should cast a blank vote or for "anybody else they please," provided they do not please to cast that vote for Mr. Greeley.

The Liberal Republicans of Alabama who were disappointed that the Democratic party did not divide State offices with them for the privilege of voting for their candidate for President have worked themselves into somewhat the condition of the boy spoken of in these lines:

A small boy said, with sob and pout, "They had a party, I will, too, and I shall have nobody come—no one!"

"Please remember that in a few weeks we enter upon a campaign for county officers who are to govern and manage the next Presidential election."

The above passage occurs in the letter of Senator Spencer to Gen. Grant, printed on the outside of the Republican ticket this week. We would like to know what difference it would make to the President what political complexion the county officers were, if there was to be an honest conduct of the election. Radical county officers could be of no service to Grant in the "management" and "government" of the election if they observed faithfully the obligations of their offices. Spencer could have meant nothing less than that it was important to elect Radical county officials who would stuff the ballot boxes and fraudulently count Alabama for Grant, in the coming election; and Grant, no doubt, comprehended fully the significance of the words we have italicized from Mr. Spencer's letter.

The Philosopher of Chappaqua has written a letter to a friend in Connecticut in which he says he has no possible claim to Democratic support, and would treat all who supported him alike, not asking whether they had been, in the past, republicans or democrats.

Mr. Greeley is not alone in his philosophical manner of looking at this matter. There is a marked similarity traceable between the above and that we give below, attributed to Hans Breitman by Mr. Lehard, said to have been uttered in the great speech delivered by that character to a meeting composed of the adherents of Mr. Schmitz, his opponent, in a canvass engineered by Mr. Hiram Twine. Here, is Breitman's political philosophy as explained by himself:

"I feel that we must in good faith, and I shew myself to hold to it, Folter me, please!—But any man who gives me his vote—Vote for his political party—Shall always be regarded as a traitor!"

A Yankee named James who couldn't wait for a nomination has announced himself as candidate for Governor of Georgia. The name of James is too common. The Georgians had better retain the present incumbent named Smith.

Swallowing Greeley.

The following is from the speech by Major Wm. E. Nelson at the Decatur Illinois Democratic mass meeting:

It is truly refreshing to note the late growth of respect for Grant partisans for the Democratic party as a party. It amounts almost to veneration. Their solicitude for his interest is getting to be immense. They kindly propose its course of action for it. They say to us: "Now is the time for the Democrats! If ever you had a chance, now is the time! You ought to run a straight ticket by all means!" They ask us: "Are you Democrats going to let a faction, a few sore-heads—calling themselves Liberal Republicans—swallow the Democratic party?"

Now, gentlemen, I want to answer that question by putting one or two to my interrogator. I want to ask him: "Did you ever see a genuine swallow?" He says he has not. I then ask him to describe the process, and tell where the swallow began on the whole when he commenced swallowing; whether like a man, he commenced at the head, or slipped around and commenced at the tail? And who he last to see him if it was done, then I want to ask him if the swallow had a good deal of what in it—if it didn't, in fact, look a good deal like a swallow.

They ask us again: "Can you Democrats swallow Greeley?" I confess I am somewhat out of practice in this swallowing business. I haven't swallowed anything that tasted like a President of the United States for nearly twenty-four years. I remember in 1848 I managed to get down a Major General of the United States army and a horse; he was a white horse, they called him "Old White." Having been a long time about the thing, I am not altogether confident of my swallowing capacity, and don't want to say now that I can swallow Greeley, nor do I want to say that, with a liberal share of Democratic encouragement and assistance, I could not in November next, swallow an old officer and something white—an old white hat.

The Chicago Times has got on the rampage again with its double-headed denunciations of Greeley. It is a part of our contract with the Associated Press that whenever the editor of the Chicago Times makes a double-headed ass of himself, we are to be at the expense of making the fact public, we would be happy to have the particular section pointed out—St. Louis Times.

Somebody anxious for a telling item against Greeley, finds something ominous in the fact that Senator Schmitz declined to take breakfast with him the other morning. There may be something in it, but as long as the Senator has agreed to work and vote for Mr. Greeley, we are just as well satisfied with his position as if he boarded in the family.

There is more rejoicing among the President's newspapers over one Democrat who "repudiates Greeley," than there is over ninety and nine office-holders who vote for Grant.

Says the New Albany Ledger: "In our report yesterday of Mr. Orr's meeting Saturday night, we omitted to mention one significant fact. A gentleman in the crowd, at the conclusion of Mr. Orr's speech, shouted in stentorian voice, 'Three cheers for Grant—hip! hip! hip!'—and here he waited for a response. But not a word was uttered. He waited until the crowd was silent, still louder at first, 'Three cheers for Grant—hip! hip! hip!'—and again waited. Not a single huzzah was raised. Then Dr. Venable, around the stand and shouted: 'Three cheers for the State ticket!' These were given by the Republican part of the crowd with some enthusiasm. Now, the question is, why did the crowd refuse to cheer for Grant? It looks very much like the Greeley men had Grant on the 'hip.'"

General Logan defeated General Grant's appointment of relatives to office by insisting that it was a duty entailed upon him as Chief of Cavalry. Logan thus argues: I admit that he has appointed some of his relatives to office; but I want the Senator from Massachusetts to point his finger to the law that requires that he should do it. It is not in violation of law, is it, to do anything that shows that it is in violation of good morals? It seems to me, for a man to take care of his own household is not in violation of good morals. I believe we are told that 'He who provideth not for his own household hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel.'"

"My lord," said the foreman of an Irish jury, when giving in the verdict, "we find the man who stole the horse not guilty."

The Talladega Central railroad has invested $150,000 in saw mills at Apalachicola, Fla., to saw out crosses for the Southern Electric railroad. The ties are to be saved from cypress and junipers, and "channelized" in some such way as to render the wood impervious to decay against the prairie fires of the West.

Fannie C. Chaffin, the newly elected Colonel of S. X. and the newly elected regent, refused to admit her because she "repudiates certain principles for the good of women." We should like to know the names of those bad keepers.

We would patronize them in all our friends. We have frequently remarked on the futility of attempting to force the character of a man by the force of law. John G. Davis, of Decatur, Kingston county, is dead.

Every season the Liberty (Mich.) Herald grows hungrier for watermelon.

The editor writes to the New York Herald of a citizen who furnishes the largest watermelon. A register of the weight of each melon will be kept up to the 1st of September, when the successful contestant will be announced. This is an ingenious way of keeping one's self in watermelons.

A RAIN OF BONES.

A Strange Phenomenon.

Persons in Louisiana are to be credited, Dame Nature has recently been playing strange pranks in that portion of the country. A writer to the New York Herald of a citizen whose veracity and good standing is vouched for by the editor of that paper, gives the following particulars of a strange phenomenon that occurred in Carroll Parish last of June.

He says that a heavy storm visited that parish some days previous to the date of writing, the 21st, and during the storm fish bones fell to the ground by the millions. These bones seemed to come from an exceedingly large black cloud that was passing at the time. The shower of bones was attended by a heavy fall of rain.

The correspondent says that the bones rattled at the feet of his horse as he rode over a field of country ten miles in width by many miles in length. Accompanying the letter were seven of the bones, varying from one pebble to two inches and one sixteenth in length, and seven-sixteenths of an inch to twelve and a half sixteenths of an inch in breadth, from one inch to one inch and six-sixteenths in length, and from one inch and a half to two inches in thickness. They are of a regular diamond shape. One side of the bone is nearly flat, having on the under side, which is worn smooth, three small apertures, as if veins or tendons had passed through them. These apertures have been shown to expert anatomical fishermen and also to learned ichthyologists, and they are not able to ascertain to what particular kind of fish the bones belonged.

They all agree, however, in the opinion that they are veritable fish bones.

Several theories have been advanced in explanation of this strange phenomenon. It is generally conceded, however, that the bones have been blown through the air for hundreds and perhaps thousands of miles. The inhabitants of the parish believe that they were brought by a water spout or a whirlwind from the western coast of Mexico or Lower California, across the continent to the wind was blowing at the time violently from the southeast.

We have heard of its raining cats and dogs, but fish-bone showers are something altogether unprecedented.

A GRIM JOKE.—A couple of medical students disinterred a subject on a cold winter's night, and having dressed it, placed it, sitting upright, on the seat of a covered wagon, and started for home. Coming to a tavern, and seeing the bar-room lighted up, they left the wagon and went in for a drink.

The ostler observing a man sitting in the cold wagon, attempted some conversation; but receiving no answer, he discovered how the affair stood, and instantly resolved to have a little fun of his own on the occasion. So taking the corpse to the stable, he dressed himself in its clothes, and seated himself in the wagon. The students soon returned and took their seats by the side of the supposed dead man, when one of them in meriment gave him a slap on the face, "How would you like some flip, old fellow?" then remarked, tremulously, to his companion, "He's warm, by heavens!" "So would you be," replied the corpse, "if you had been stolen from him—as I have." Both students bolted, and never returned to inquire for the horse and wagon.

Senator Chandler, with the assistance of several Government clerks, is now said to be engaged in a noble undertaking in the interest of his master. This great undertaking consists in the rummaging of musty files of the New York Tribune, some thirty volumes of which are deposited in the Congressional Library. Every word in those volumes that is supposed by this industrious smelling committee to have a bearing on the present political canvass, is to be secretly treasured, and the whole is to be carefully collected and published under the title of "Greeley's Record," for consumption at Baltimore.

The Spaniards are caricaturing their young King in a very irreverent way. Many of the little untidy-boxes which all cigarette-smokers carry, have on them a sketch of a dog, running at full speed. In this, the head of the dog, substituted for that of the king, and the legend underneath runs: "Road to Italy." One of the Spanish papers published lately this advertisement:

Notice.—A young man is about to run away, with his month's wages paid in advance. Age 23, middle size, squints, chestnut-colored hair, wears beard, face discolored by night-watching. On the whole, ugly.

This unpleasant description of the King was followed by editorial comments on the wickedness of such a young man, and conjectures as to who he could be.

The Talladega authorities have forbid the playing of ball on the Court-House square, and the players are bawling at them for it.

Carlyle was offered a thousand pounds by an English country newspaper to write an account of Derby Day with his name appended.

An Idaho invalid was ordered by a physician to take three ounces of brandy a day, and knowing that sixteen drachms make an ounce, has patiently been taking forty-eight drachms a day ever since.

The Philadelphia Press, which favors Grant but not Cameron, says: "We have not met a member of the Republican party, in or out of office, in Washington or elsewhere, who is not agitated by apprehensions of defeat."

Persons in Louisiana are to be credited, Dame Nature has recently been playing strange pranks in that portion of the country. An Illinois paper, edited by Mr. Steel, says: "A printer last week proposed to go into partnership with us. His name was Doolittle, the firm named would sound very bad either way you put it—Steel & Doolittle or Doolittle & Steel. We can't join. One of us would be in the penitentiary and the other in the penitentiary."

Twice in Jeopardy.

Just before going to press a report reaches us that Yarbrough who was tried at the last term of the Circuit Court for this county, and convicted of manslaughter in the first degree, having been charged with the killing of a negro at Childersburg and who was serving out his sentence, has been re-arrested and carried to Montgomery. How or by what authority we do not know, under the old reading of the law, they did not try a man but once for the same crime.—Talladega Reporter.

Re-Union of the Tenth Alabama Regiment.

At the first Re-Union of the 10th Ala. Regiment held at Shelby Springs on the 27th and 28th of July, 1871, the Association resolved to hold the next annual meeting at or near Talladega, on the 27th and 28th of July, 1872.

In accordance with this resolve a call is hereby made upon all who are members of the association, or who have been heretofore connected with the 10th Ala. Regiment, to meet in the town of Talladega on Thursday the 18th day of July next, to carry out the purposes of the organization.

Order, Capt. R. W. Cobb, of Shelby, Tenn., Thomas Henderson, of Talladega, Ala., and Lewis of Shelby.

It is anxiously hoped that every survivor in the Regiment will be present on that occasion. By order of the Pres't. G. L. TURNER, Secretary.

Papers published within the counties in which the Regiment was raised please copy.

when she carried the evidence of her guilt with her to the bar of the Grand Jury? Oh, no, for all of sin there was to her act was that sin committed against her by her vile seducer. We wish we could find a name, that we might brand his name, that we might herald it to the infamy of the world. The law would punish such a monster by a fine, or for at least he is worthy for such a punishment. We are wondered at, then, that fathers, brothers, and husbands should do out or put to pieces such scoundrels as these. Are they wiser or more virtuous than though they were wolves or hyenas? We only wonder that so few are thus treated.—Louise Lehey.

A Plea for the Teachers.

A change in the manner in which teachers of public schools in England are paid, has been recently recommended, and is denominated as an act of justice. They work hard for the pitance they receive,

If, however, the requirement is not intelligible, (as it sometimes is) or the Superintendent already has funds in his hands amounting to more than half the

These disadvantages could all be remedied by the counties retaining the money for school purposes at home, or in their own county treasury and promptly making a check to the teachers and principal.

Frightful Railroad Accident—Seven Men Mortally Wounded.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, July 3.—A fearful accident occurred on the Chicago &

west of here, near Belle Plaine yesterday. A construction train had orders to work between Belle Plaine and Luzerne, the first station this side. Freight train No. 17 arrived at the latter station at 2:20 in the morning, and telegraphed to Belle Plaine for an engine to help them cover the Buckeye grade. The engine was sent and ran into the construction train, which was backing up to get out of the way of the freight train. The passenger car was telegraphed completely, and seven men were mortally wounded. Bill Anderson, the conductor, died in a few Great Reduction in Prices.

Col. Parr has reduced the prices of his Tobacco from 25 to 50 per cent. He has a very large stock. Call and see.

Rev. J. K. Armstrong will preach in the Methodist Church, on Sunday 14th, at 11 o'clock, and also at night.

Mrs. Burton: We noticed in your last issue that John Wilkins said his tree surpassed Jim Farmer's, and if so, the south side of the square can't see it, as the shade is pleasant and Jim's water is cool.

SHATBY DALE.

Letter from DeKalb County.

COLLINSVILLE, July 4th, 1872.

Editors of the Republican: As you have no regular correspondent in this county, I have concluded to write you a few lines giving you the crop prospects and such other items of news that may suggest themselves.

CROPS.

I have lately traveled almost the entire length of this county on the east side, and I think I am safe in saying that I have not seen the prospects for a good crop so flattering since the spring.

The wheat, a grand crop of which has been garnered, is very fair, and the corn crop, and the grain of excellent quality.

Due to the continued dry weather in the Spring, the crop, especially the Spring wheat, is better than in any other year, though there were some indications of a too much neglected grain that made a fine yield.

POLITICAL.

I cannot close this scroll, already perhaps too long, without some reference to the late State Convention. So far as I have heard, the nominations are acceptable, while many of us here among the mountains were preparing to give a generous support to Henry's rising star, and felt some disappointment when he was not brought out as our banner bearer, we cheerfully acquiesce in the action of the convention, and promise to give Col. Herndon all the aid and comfort we can, by polling for him the united vote of the Democratic and Conservative party, and the colored people.

They rolling down from the mountains of North Alabama, will meet that rising from the wave-washed shores of South Alabama, at the Capital next fall, and rejoice together over the downfall of the Union in our beloved Georgia.

The other nominations everywhere meet with a hearty approval. Parker, Sanford, Hudson and Grant are tried men, and having been found faithful and efficient in the past, it was just that they should be again honored by a re-nomination.

Col. Barnett is a tower of strength within himself, and needs no recommendation of other men to recommend him to the Democracy. His nomination is a great success at large cannot fail to be acceptable. I hope that the flag of Grant of South Alabama will let his voice be heard on our mountain tops, and in the valleys, once identified with the eloquence of the great General, and his voice will be good news to us, and a banner Grant is possible.

Wishing you unbounded success, and a glorious victory to the Democratic and Conservative party next fall, I will close.

Yours, J. K. ARMSTRONG.

James Fisk and the Newbery.

Stories of Col. Fisk are constantly in circulation, some true, others not, but little incident which occurred not many months before his death is perhaps one of the most touching of any that have been given to the public. This one Mrs. Fisk herself has placed in the hands of the people, and it is a most touching and sympathetic and helpful to those who need it. Col. Fisk had often noticed in Twenty-third street a little crippled new-born, and one day he spoke to him in his bluff, off-hand manner.

"Well, my boy, how's business?"

"Not very good, sir," was the reply.

"What's the matter?"

"Why, you see I'm lame and I can't run, and the other boys get ahead of me, and I can't sell my papers very well."

"Not a very good look-out for you, is it? I say, my boy, how would you like to go into business with me?"

The boy looked perplexed and eyed the Colonel curiously.

"I think we might strike up a bargain. You come to the Opera House at 11 this evening. I've got a plan for you; now be on time."

At 11 o'clock the boy was there, quite anxious to know what the Colonel wanted.

"Hullo, boy; you're a good one. Now see here; do you know a good place for a paper stand?"

"Yes, sir, up-top."

"Down here at the corner?"

"How much will a stand cost?"

"Lots of money; much as fifty or a hundred dollars."

"You don't say so; why that's a fortune. Do you think there's money to be made there?"

"Yes, I do. It's a first-rate place."

"Well, I'll get a carpenter to make the stand, and I'll stock it, and you shall take care of it and sell the papers; you and I will go into the paper business."

Col. Fisk then arranged with the boy what part of the profits he should receive, and told him when the stand should be ready and sent him on his way rejoicing. The plan was very successful. Trade was good, and every week the boy carried his share of the money to his father. Seeing the boy's determination, Col. Fisk quietly put the money aside, and one day gave it all to the boy, releasing him from his contract to pay any part of the money to himself. When Col. Fisk died there was no widow, a son and a daughter, and the little stand on the corner was heavily draped on the day of the burial.

No; we would not live always on the equator; we ask not to stay where you live, to meet the sun in the sky, and you shall take care of it and sell the papers; you and I will go into the paper business."

Trade was good, and every week the boy carried his share of the money to his father. Seeing the boy's determination, Col. Fisk quietly put the money aside, and one day gave it all to the boy, releasing him from his contract to pay any part of the money to himself. When Col. Fisk died there was no widow, a son and a daughter, and the little stand on the corner was heavily draped on the day of the burial.

No; we would not live always on the equator; we ask not to stay where you live, to meet the sun in the sky, and you shall take care of it and sell the papers; you and I will go into the paper business."

Col. Fisk then arranged with the boy what part of the profits he should receive, and told him when the stand should be ready and sent him on his way rejoicing. The plan was very successful. Re-Union of the Tenth Alabama Regiment.

At the first Re-Union of the 10th Ala Regiment held at Shelby Springs on the 27 and 28th of July, 1871, the Association, resolved to hold its next annual meeting at or near Tallahassee, on the Thursday before the 4th Monday in July, 1872.

In accordance with this resolve a call is hereby made upon all who are members of the association, or who have been heretofore connected with the 10th Ala Regiment, to meet in the town of Tallahassee on Thursday the 4th day of July next, to carry out the purpose of the organization.

Orator, Capt. H. W. Cobb, of Shelby Springs, Tallahassee, Fla.

It is anxiously hoped that every survivor in the Regiment will be present on that occasion. By order of the Pres't, G. L. TURNLEY, Secretary.

Papers published within the counties in which the Regiment was raised please copy.

The effects of the late storm in Pulaski, Tenn., were terrible, the land being stripped the cotton of every vestige of leaf and limb and bending and breaking in a ruinous manner. On the plain of Mr. Buchanan the rain fell in such torrents that the crops were drowned in dry lots, and the stock floated about the yard on a sea of water.

Cooked Cucumbers.

"It does not seem very generally known," says an exchange, "that the cucumber is one of the most useful vegetables we have, and can be dressed in a greater variety of palatable ways than most of vegetables, the tomato not excepted. It is better than the squash, and more delicate than the egg-plant, prepared in the same manner; can be stewed, fried, or stuffed, and, above all, can be par-boiled, mashed up in batter and fried as fritters more pleasant and easier prepared than any other vegetable or fruit. When a cucumber becomes just too old to be used raw or for pickling, it is then at its best for cooking, and may be used for that purpose even until the seeds become hard. A raw cucumber is, for most persons, an indigestible abomination, however much they may admire its flavor and odor."

THE RIGHT SPIRIT.—A colored man from Bloomfield, Kentucky, says—

"I write to say that I am a Greeley man from the gratitudes of my heart for his life of labor spent in behalf of my race. Send me some campaign documents, and I shall work for Greeley and Brown—if I have to beg my bread and walk from town to town to speak."

Of seventy odd political papers published in the State of Alabama, all but three support Greeley and Brown, two of which are the Radical papers of Montgomery.

McCullagh, of the St. Louis Democrat, killed Cuffax; and now we have a ditty: "Whisper the air that, as soon as his term is out, Cuffax is to succeed McCullagh as editor of the great moral organ of the West."

President Grant has still one newspaper to uphold him in New York City. The Times devotes itself to the reading of Mr. Greeley of the Republican party, and inviting the Democrats to support the Present Bill. The Evening Post, Journal of Commerce, and Herald, though not committed to the active support of Greeley, are investigating hands against the shortcomings of the present Administration. The Tribune, Sun, and Express are sanguine, and consider Greeley's election secured.

The luck of D. P. Pullen, Mayor of Paris, Ky., has changed, and after a disconcerting succession of ten girls, number eleven proves to be a fine boy. An old report once said that "when luck's right you it's no use to shuffle the cards, and you'll better lay out for a hand or two." But the reward of perseverance in Mayor Pullen's case does not corroborate the theory.

Thomas Crabb, Rear Admiral in the United States Navy, who died at his residence in Princeton, N. J., on Saturday night, at the age of eighty-four years, had been connected with the navy for more than sixty years. He was born in Maryland in 1788, and afterward removed to Pennsylvania, from which State he entered the Naval Academy in 1803. He was made a Captain in 1811, and from 1859 to 1865 had charge of various of the foreign squadrons. In 1862 he was made Commodore, and in 1868 Rear Admiral.

Many of the ex-army officers, finding that the Grand Army of the Republic is being run by the Grant Military Family, have announced their intention to sever their connection therewith. Other officers will propose the following question at the Pittsburgh S. M. S. and Sailors' Convention: "Does the fact of a person having served in the army or on a gunboat during the late war necessitate that person's voting for Grant the remainder of his natural life?" Much might be said on one side of this question.

The war between the Haytiens and Dominicans has suddenly ended, both parties having run out of the snow. The report that Racz will visit the United States for an electioneering tour in the interest of the Gracities is not generally credited.

From Madrid we learn that Dr. Howard is at liberty. It is stated that pardon was tendered him, which he would not accept, not being willing to acknowledge, even indirectly, the justice of his imprisonment. He was then turned out and forced to seek lodgings elsewhere.

The Official Gazette of Berlin has published the law recently enacted providing for the banishment of the Jews from Germany. All establishments in the Empire now under their control must be broken up within six months.

Franklin said: "A newspaper and a Bible in every house, and a good school in every district, are the principal supporters of virtue, morality and civil liberty."

"Wife," said a man looking for his boot-jack, "I have places where I keep my things, and you ought to know it."

"Yes, I ought to know where you keep your late hours—but I don't."

J. L. Pennington-The Printer.

He started as an apprentice in the old Star office, in Raleigh. Next, he kept a bar-room in Wilmington. Next, he was foreman of a paper printed in this place. Next, he walked in one day into an office in Richmond, and asked one of the young men (whom he knew) for work. He worked awhile in the office, said it would not pay, and left for Petersburg, posted his bills, &c., to lecture on physiology. Next, the same journeyman who got him work in Richmond, was at work one day in Danville, and he stepped in, in an old greasy coat, collar held tight around his neck, and asked "What will it cost to print some bills?" He was going to lecture on Biology. Next, was editor of the Newbern Progress. Next, the same journeyman had a lady on his arm, and he went into the circus in Richmond, Pennington, nicely gloved, met them at the door as usher, and cried: "This way, sir, with the lady," and showed them a seat. Then he came in, coat and gloves slung off, sleeves rolled up, and a big waiter of cool tea laid out in his hands, hollering: "Here's your ice cool lemonade, ladies and gentlemen, only ten cents a glass," and he sold it to the journeyman and his lady without even winking his eye. Next, he met the same journeyman in this town when he came through here as a ticket agent, with a circus wagon and four horses to post his bills, and he paid the journeyman a good price to do it for him. He was ashamed to be seen.

And now he is president of four railroads in Alabama, has made eight hundred thousand dollars, and is going to run a Grant paper on Grant money out there.

Hillsboro Record.—And as a member of the Alabama Senate, leads the Grant ring of the Alabama Legislature to victory or spoils.—Enterprise Times.

In a speech recently delivered in Virginia, the Hon. John Goode arraigned the Radical party in the following emphatic and powerful manner. Mr. Goode said:

"They have suspended the great writ of habeas corpus; they have subjected defenseless people to military masters; they have arrested our countrymen by military order, without warrant, without affidavit, and hurried them hundreds of miles away to be tried by packed juries before servile and obsequious judges; convicted them on perjured testimony and sent them beyond the border to languish and die in Northern dungeons; they have systematically robbed the States of the South and have piled up an enormous load of debt and made them cry out in their woe and extremity: 'How long, O Lord, how long!' Such have been the enormities of the present administration that the people have become disgusted and are determined by a mighty effort for their deliverance."

Is there a patriotic heart in all the Sunny South land, the great West, or the North, that is not fired with indignation at this array of stupendous wrongs beneath which the people of the South are groaning, and even while writhing with weight of our galling chains and lifting our mangled hands to Heaven for redress we are told by infamous, unfeeling, insulting and brutal United States Judge that "Alabama nor other State has any rights or dignity that are not absolutely subservient to the general government." This is the Radical bill of fare, fellow citizens, will be daily set before us for four years more in the event of the success of the party, which God forbid!

But we believe that the people are aroused and fully awake to a sense of the danger, consequently we have no present response to make to the villainous dictums of the myriads of despised minions acting under the lash of party rule.

As an outraged people we disclaim to answer them now, we only ask them to wait until the tide of November, 1872, then they will be forced to accept for a reply the sharp Democratic lightning and the deep tones of Conservative thunder that will fill their guilty souls with awe and make their teeth chatter and their knees quake and tremble as did the Babylonish King when they read upon the wall the fearful light of truth the dread words of prophecy. Let every lover of his country take courage then, for the hour of deliverance is at hand. The golden sunshine of a glorious political day is already gliding the mountain peaks that look upon the promised land. Soon his genial rays will spread over all the broad domain of a mighty Republic, redeemed, regenerated and disenthralled. Yes—

"The day will come, the great avenging day, When the tyrant's work in the dust shall lie, When the power of Grant—yes, Grant himself shall fall, And one prodigious ruin swallow all."

Stanley, the New York Herald's African correspondent, is said to have arrived at Allen, a seaport of Arabia, a few days since, and is now on his way to London, in company with a son of Dr. Livingstone. The Doctor will spend a few years more in Africa, hunting up the source of the Nile. The result of the great explorer's late expedition from Ujiji is not yet learned.

Just Published, in a Solid Envelope, PRICE SIX CENTS.

A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment and Radical Cure of Sexual Weakness, or Sterility, Induced by Self-Abuse, or Onanism, and its Consequences. (Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility and Impediments to Marriage generally.) Consumption, Epilepsy, and Palsy Mental and Physical Impairment, etc. By ROBERT T. CLIFFORD, M.D., author of the "Green Book," &c.

The world-renowned author in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, blisters, instruments, rings, or crutches, pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, can find relief, privately, and, if desired, without the least exposure.

Send under seal, to any address, in a plain sealed envelope, on the receipt of six cents, or two postage stamps. Also, Dr. Clifford's "Marriage Guide," price 25 cents. Address the Publisher, CLIFFORD, J. C. KLINE & CO., 127 Bovey, New York, P. O. box 4,569
